THE PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Many positive things have happened within the Boone and Crockett Club organization since you have received your Summer issue of Fair Chase.

First of all, we now have a large, attractive sign at the end of the bridge that crosses the Clark Fork River next to our headquarters building, telling those who are interested in knowing, where to find us.

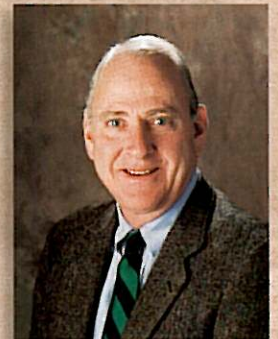

Additionally, we have completed the remodeling of the second floor of the Depot and have secured a long-term lease for this space from The University of Montana and related organizations. The Conservation Summit Center, and the Boone and Crockett Club room with its excellent collection of books written by or about current and former members, have been newly redecorated. Also, a new, beautifully-lighted glass gun safe, recently presented to us by B&C Members, Jack McAndrews and Bill Schmoie, is in place waiting for donations of distinctive firearms from interested individuals like you. Call our office if you have a significant firearm that you might want to donate to the Club. Remember, we are a tax exempt organization.

The Lewis and Clark Interpretive Center is now being constructed in Great Falls, Montana, as an historical tribute to those two great explorers, and to memorialize the National Forest named after them. You can be of help to the people charged with the responsibility of bringing this Center to completion if you have a life size mount of a North American big game animal that is in good condition and is a respectable trophy that you would donate to the exhibit. If you do, call the Boone and Crockett office for details of whom to contact. Your donation will be much appreciated and your trophy will be seen by thousands for many years to come.

In the next few months we will send you an extra issue of Fair Chase that discusses the concept of "shared resources" as viewed by many different individuals and organizations. As our population continues to grow, we find increasing competition for a finite resource base. We must examine the entire environment of "resource sharing." We must create a structure in which all parties can feel they have been a significant contributor to the concept of "shared resources."
