FIELD PHOTOGRAPHY TIP NO. 6

We often times poke fun at photography of yesteryear. Just look back at your high school yearbook or prom photos for examples that will hit close to home. Across time or culture changes, our societies change, we change, and so does the equipment we use to take pictures. More often than not, photos we see taken back in the good old days are amusing by today's standards, but this is not always the case. While it's true, the B&C record archives are full of photos that illustrate just how far we have come, there are others that would seem out of place if not for being in black and white and demonstrating the dress or weapons of the day. Here is one example.
