To me, hunting desert sheep is the hunt of a lifetime. Harvesting a book-worthy ram is just the cherry on top. My hunt for a desert sheep in Utah could not have been successful without my good friends and my family by my side.

We spent several days scouting and learning the land. We spotted several good rams and one fine ram in particular. We made a stalk the first night we saw him, but he busted us. After a sleepless night, we returned to where we had last seen him. Minutes after sunrise, we glassed him up and knew we had a chance to harvest him. With my two good friends by my side, we made a quick stalk to get into position.

We set up patiently on the edge of a bluff, thinking the ram would follow the ewes through a pass in the mountain. When the group started passing through, the ram followed. I made the shot, and the emotions set in. I had waited 25 years to harvest a sheep. To have it over in just seconds was surreal. I was overcome with emotions and could not be more thankful for the opportunity to harvest this wonderful animal.

We waited for the rest of the group before walking over to the ram. Once we saw him up close, we were amazed at how magnificent he was. I will remember this hunt forever. Knowing that this ram is in the books is so rewarding. Special thanks to Ryley, Dustin, Scotty, Casey, and my son Brad.
